MEMORANDUM FOR: Chief, European Personnel

THROUGH : Chief, clandestine Service Personnel Staff

SUBJECT : Permanent Place of Residence

REFERENCE : R&D Report- [REDACTED] (attached)

1. I have previously approved a change in Subject's home leave point from Danville, Virginia to Coronado, California but cannot agree to the approval of the latter as her Permanent Place of Residence. While [REDACTED] may elect to use her brother as an emergency addressee (and official personnel records will reflect this information), neither this fact nor the future taking of home leave in Coronado, California will have any bearing on the determination of her PPR.

2. An employee's Permanent Place of Residence has a precise meaning, as defined [REDACTED] for official use in determining certain travel entitlements, e.g., at the time of separation or retirement. These regulations indicate that an employee's PPR normally will be the place where he or she physically dwelt at the time of PCS transfer abroad. Another place can be requested and approved if it can be established that such other place was the employee's domicile or permanent dwelling place before PCS transfer abroad and that the actual dwelling immediately before departure was temporary.

3. When the policy issues concerning the formulation of new definitions of "home leave point" and "Permanent Place of Residence" were first being discussed within the Agency, the idea of allowing the designation of either situs on the basis of a personal declaration of intent to reside or take home leave at some new place in the future was firmly rejected.
